Puck is a peculiar man, indeed. Standing no more than three feet tall, his white hair stands in stark contrast to the bluish-tinged skin and bright eyes, marking a distinctly Faerie heritage. Some speculate that Puck may be a true Faerie, himself, but such talk is merely heresay. What is known is that, as an infant, Puck was literally left on the doorstep of Durenmar. His mother and father continue to remain a mystery.

Puck is wild and mischievous, enjoying practical jokes and tomfoolery. Though his antics are generally harmless and amusing, he does have a cruel streak in him when the notion takes him.

During his time at Durenmar, Puck has always proclaimed himself the "Ambassador of Irencillia", though no one from Durenmar or Irencillia can bear witness that Puck has ever even been to that most-Faerie of covenants.

Puck's recent departure from Durenmar was unexpected, if the unexpected can be anything but expected in Puck. In truth, he has a fondness for the shapeshifter Pavel and is following the lad, just as Pavel is following the minstrel Malloc. To what end this chain of events shall come, whose to know?
