

Investigative Consultant Mission Briefing

MISSION #1666

MISSION TYPE: Extreme Fumigation / Retrieval of Unknown Artifact

Travel to New Dijon, Quebec, Canada, and recover an artifact from unknown entities (Shadow-Blue to Delta Green class entities most probable), before an Enigma-class mortal can retrieve it.

LOCATION: New Dijon Graveyard.

BACKGROUND

The city of New Dijon lies in the Quebec province of Canada, and was, for the most part, a typical town until four years ago. It was home to only a few thousand, most of which didn't survive "Hell Night", and event which occurred late in 2007. We've received a very personal account from our client, apparently a collaborator in the event, that the following events actually occurred:

The city's dead rose as one, and an army of dead bodies marched on the city. The police reacted as quickly as possible, and ended up calling for military backup. Due to the extreme nature of the request, they got it. The military moved in, and with apparently unknown assistance, was able to battle the force back to the graveyard from which it had originated. After the graveyard was wiped clean, the attacks were ended.

The following was taped during an interview with our client, regarding the disturbance:

"Yes, I was there that day, in New Dijon. I was following the one we knew as Oracle, and we recieved signs while on the interstate that something was gone wrong from the Messangers. We pulled into the city, where rots (P.L.E. -possessed bodies) were destroying the city en masse. When we reached the graveyard, the destruction was untoshinkable... there was a giant storm, throwing thousands of spirits into the air, and a hole in the sky that seemed as if it had torn open into Hell itself. With the aid of the man Traveler, Oracle was able to shut the hole. In the aftermath, I believed I spied the source of the outbreak... a single, small object, which despite my ability to view, was beyond my grasp."

"Recently, the one known as Oracle has gone renegade to our cause, and is travelling with all speed towards New Dijon... I believe she seeks the item from the graveyard, for untold evil purposes. She must be stopped, and the artifact recovered."

Our data shows the graveyard to be two miles within the town, which has only recently begun recovering from the event. Many people were institutionalised following the deployment of the Canadian Forces, and the events surrounding what our client called a "Hellstorm". Some of them eyewitnessed the events, and may still be sane enough to back up his accounts.

MISSION PARAMETERS

The primary objective of this mission is to reclaim the spiritual object at the centre of the graveyard, and return it to HQ. Our contact on this mission says it resembles a small ash-tray. All other things aside, this needs to be recollected.

It is possible that some shadow-class entities may also linger in the graveyard following the New Dijon "Hellstorm" incident, and as usual, they are to be fumigated if they stand in the way of the object.

The woman known as Oracle, according to our client, will be able to see even unmanifested ghosts, and employ destructive powers of an unknown nature against them. Though she appears as a normal woman, most marked by her long white hair and a wild look in her face, it is possible that she may be a Jason, or employing some other unknown power to use against both in-the-meat agents and ghosts. She is to be considered extremely hostile, and to be terminated if encountered. Oracle: Enigma-Class Red.

Another first on this mission is our client has demanded to assist us. He claims to have the same powers to view the undead as Oracle, and for us to refer to him as "God45". He will be in New Dijon by our arrival, and trying to deal with any defenses the graveyard has from what he describes as "a meat perspective". God45: Enigma-Class Green.

Time is of the essence. Get on the plane.

INTELLIGENCE

The Orpheus Group has had no previous experience in New Dijon, due to the hesitancy of the Canadian government to legalise projection technology. What we know of Oracle, we have heard from God45. You're truly on your own on this one. Be careful, and stick together.
