

Report to the Mouth and the Brains
From Toes, Fingers and a Wrist in Hanal
Regarding the use of the Nails of the Hand

As it pleases you honored Mouth, in the absence of our own Spinal Column, we have endeavored to identify probable targets for the use of the nails of the hand.

We have determined the three that will have the most effect on the Queen-Empress' activity (I cannot help but think of her that way - somehow though I think I know I shouldn't) Those three are:

Peltar Drak Dlnalihof. He is the Peltar (general) of the Outer Palace Guard. He is, we believe, possessed.

Strom Bartak the Hyrshiv. This Strom is hugely wealthy, more so than many Kovs, and a fanatic of the Green. He is part of the Queen-Empress inner circle and it will be difficult to reach him, particularly as all three must meet the nails at the same time, but we believe it can be done.

Vad Vasni ti Delphor Caterion. The Vad appears to be a merchant knight - just at a level where he is permitted the common Green, but not his own Green nor a personal coat of arms, instead using the coat of arms of his own overlord.

We believe however that Vad Caterion is not a simple knight and wine merchant, but rather is one of the spymasters of Hanal. We also know that his brother is one of the great sorcerer scientists of the Empire and discomfiting him would be its own reward.

We await your word. We know that Canberry rarely uses the nails, almost never in fact, but we feel that in this case it might be worth it, to unbalance the powers that be, even if only for a moment.

Please advise as you can, we await your word.