

Unto the Mouth
From an eye in Gates

Situation seems to have recently become more stable for the commons in Gates and less stable among the Gates and Doors (greater and lesser houses) of the city state. West Gate and his two doors (Northwest and Southwest) have seen considerable internal conflict. I myself am embedded with South Gate and well placed. South is like a rock and has been throughout. West however has seen absolute convulsions. At least 5 members of the houses have "died" in the last week. 2 more have been whisked away by the Keymaster and his questioners. I cannot stress how rare it is for the Keymaster to intrude into a noble house of any status. There is worry in that the legions of the city are divided up, and each great house has 3. The three belonging to West however have not budged from their assigned positions, so the concern is dying down.

I will endeavor to keep you informed in case things do not take a turn for the better.